THE ITHACAN

A Student Newspaper For Ithaca College

WELCOME CLASS OF 1987

01 1983

FROM OUR POINT OF VIEW

HELLO AND WELCOME

The coming of September and the return to school brings different thoughts to each of us. The Freshmen class comes to Ithaca nervous and scared "What is college?", they wonder, "Will I like my roommate(s)?", and "Will I in return be accepted?" The Sophmores look on the coming of school as a chance to involve themselves further into college life, without the embarrassment of asking "Where is the chapel?". Juniors return to school at the cross roads of their college careers, two years of college finished and two years until the begining of the search for a job and life outside of formal schooling. The Senior class comes to school looking at the year ahead with hope and anticipation, the hope for a fulfilling and exciting last year of schooling, but with the anticipation and knowledge that a job must be secured in the very near future.

All together we make up Ithaca College, the people, the faces, the characters, the attitudes. We each have something to offer to the experience of Ithaca College, and we all expect something in return. So as we begin the coming year with a fresh outlook, offer what you have to Ithaca College and expect the highest returns.

Good luck in the coming year.

The ITHACAN is a student newspaper published by the Ithacan Publishing Company of Ithaca College, Ithaca, New York. It is published every Thursday during the academic year and is distributed without charge around the Ithaca College campus every Thursday.

As a public service, The Ithacan will print relevant events of public interest to the students of Ithaca College in its Announcements section without charge. It is asked that these messages be sent through intercampus mail or to the address listed below, and received before 5:00pm on the Monday before publication. Public service announcements may also be placed in the Ithacan's mail box located in the Egbert Union near the check cashing window.

The Ithacan also encourages student input for stories and/or submissions. Offices are located in the Basement of Landon hall, Dorm 6, Ithaca College. Phone (607) 274-3207.

Changes, we all go through them, from childhood to adults; our expectations shift, we expect more. Here at the Ithacan we have received the message that everyone involved at Ithaca College wanted and is expecting more from this publication. We here at the Ithacan have taken heed to this message. The Ithacan has been using the phrase "One of America's Independent College Newspaper's" for years. The Ithacan is independent in the editorial sense, that is the school does not tell us what can and cannot go into the paper. The paper is not independent in the financial sense. Since 1969 the school has been paying the Ithacan the same amount of money, fourteen thousand and twenty-five dollars a year for the right to purchase 4000 copies of the paper each week. As of this issue we are no longer using the phrase "An Independent College Newspaper", but we are using the phrase of what we are, "A Student Newspaper for Ithaca College".

We have attempted many other changes this year, some visual, some not. The news and entertainment sections of this paper have been enlarged and redesigned. We intend to create a more visual and exciting paper. We have gone out and purchased the latest and best available typesetting equipment to allow us many different type faces and unlimited imaginative possibilities. The other major change is the management of the paper. No longer is one person responsible for the total newspaper. We have restructured the management to have co-editors, or two people in charge; one for the literary and news aspect of the paper, the other for the entertainment and business needs.

The Ithacan needs to complete one other change. WE NEED YOU! This paper cannot be run by 10 people. Given the unlimited resources of this college campus, we need unlimited people to report this information. Reporters are not the only people needed to run a paper. Typists, business people, accountants, photographers, lay out, copy, and management people are needed. Overall, if you have a talent, let us know. Tonight, Thursday, September 1st at 8:00 p.m. in the Ithacan office (basement of Landon Hall, Lower Quads) we will have an open house, stop down, tell us your interests, your needs from the paper, and your wants from this publication. We at the Ithacan want to change, and need to change. You can help us do that.

ENROLLMENT HITS RECORD

HOUSING: NO VACANCY

HOUSING

Ithaca College once again broke its record enrollment. This fall, a record 4,875 full-time undergraduate students will attend the South Hill campus, exceeding last year's record enrollment of 4,743. Freshmen entering this fall are up to 1,450, an increase of 100 over last year. Additionally, 150 transfer students from two year and four year institutions are attending classes. Also, some part-time undergraduates as well as approximately 100 full-time and 35 part-time graduate students are expected to attend college.

With this record enrollment, there is not only an increase in students, but an increase in lines which can be seen everywhere around campus. Housing is also having some problems accomodating such a large group. Although not all the student body lives on campus, 3,500 students requested campus accomodations. Therefore, the majority of corner rooms have been converted into triples and many Terrace lounges hold six students. Many transfer students found themselves living in Kenton Motel for several days, although only a handful still remain. The Health Center basement has also taken in some students, not for being sick, but for housing.

While room is tight on campus, that problem should be alleviated when the new dormitory is completed. This much needed project will help take some of the overload from the other dormitories. Meanwhile, students living in triples and lounges will receive a rebate of $128 dollars if their stay lasts longer than September 12, 1983.

Although lines are long at the bookstore and at the dining halls, they can be expected since it is only the beginning of the semester. Thus, as the semester gets underway, problems are sure to exist and they should be in control as everybody settles in. Yet, for the time being many students will have to contend with the current housing crunch.

NEW DORM

With a strong demand for on-campus student housing and continued increases in enrollment, Ithaca College found it necessary to expand its residential living. As a result, construction began in early July to build a new dormitory which is located near the upper quads area. "As long as everything goes as planned, completion of the project is set for mid-October of this year; that is if the weather cooperates and all the materials are delivered on time. However, at this time we do not foresee any delays," according to Richard Correnti, Vice-President of Student Affairs.

The two and a half story building will house 100 students and will be consistent with the other dormitories on campus. It was designed by the architectural firm of Hoffman, O'Brien, Levatich, and Taube. The general contractor is Streeter Association Inc. of Elmira.

The new dorm will meet a long-lasting need for housing on-campus. Currently, many Terrace lounges are rooming six students, and many corner rooms are triples. Furthermore, several transfer students are temporarily housed in the Kenton Motel and several rooms in the Health Center basement have been converted for student housing. When completed the new dormitory will house those students currently in lounges and triples. Students in the Health Center will most likely remain there and will be considered part of Landon Hall.

KENTON PLAZA

It has been said that for every problem there is a solution. For Ithaca College Residential Life they seem to have found a temporary solution to a problem that arises each year. Unfortunately, there were too many students, yet insufficient room to accomodate everyone, especially the transfer students. Therefore, Kenton Motel on Rt. 13 became an extension of Residential Life, R.A. and all. When nearly sixty transfer students arrived here on Wednesday, August 24 many of them found to their surprise that they would be housed in a motel until room became available on campus. The transfer students, who were also given a resident assistant, would receive the same $128 rebate as students in triples if their stay lasted after September 12th.

Jeffery Bruni, a biology transfer student, said "I'm just glad I have housing at all." Too often transfer students had a difficult time getting any housing. Yet, Bruni adds, "Residential Life deserves alot of credit for providing housing for us. They did their best to convenience us." As far as convenience and comfort is concerned, the students at the motel are better off in some respects. The motel rooms include many conveniences, including color telvisions, telephones, air conditioning, and private bathrooms. A yellow school bus leaves the motel every half hour and departs Textor Hall once every hour for the ten minute ride to Kenton Motel.

According to Bruni, the only real inconvenience is having to leave for a new assignment on moments notice since they have no definite date when he will be moved on campus. Thus, Bruni's suitcase still sits packed near his bedside; ready to go when the call comes in. And that call may be very soon. The number of students still there shrinks everyday and the number remaining has dropped below ten. Although the problems at Kenton Motel may soon be over, many students are still crowded into lounges and other areas.

THE GREAT REDEEMER

by Dian Dulberger

Beginning September 12th, the New York State Bottle Bill goes into effect. The bill states that all carbonated beverages up to one gallon in size require a return deposit which will be included in the purchase price. Ithaca College has the distinction of being the first place in New York State to install Reverse Vending Machines.

Distributed and paid for by the Coca-Cola Company the machines will help to eliminate the proposed surplus of cans expected after the bill goes into effect.

A mechanism inside the machine reads the inventory bar code and either accepts or rejects the can. If rejected, the can remains in the machine until manually removed. If accepted, the can is crushed a nickle is returned to the consumer.

Director of Business Services, Don Runyon, expressed his pleasure and astonishment that Ithaca College would be the first to have the machines and sincerely hopes they will relieve any possible problems. For the future it has been proposed that the redemption centers be located throughout the campus to accommodate students. For the time being, there are three machines located on the campus; one near the bookstore, another in the Student Union and the third in the academic area of the Muller Faculty Center.

During the summer, a price change occurred; and after the passage of the bottle bill by the New York Legislature an additional five cents was added to the proposed cost of fifty cents making the total price fifty-five cents.

The only obvious flaw so far seems to be the problem of cans which the vending machine has not been programmed to receive. Several empty orange and grape cans litter the area near the machine. Eventually, the machines will be programmed to accommodate all cans marked with the five cent return deposit stamp.

New Directors Assigned

The new incoming students will not be the only new faces one will see on campus this fall. Many campus offices have changed directors. Some of the new directors are not really new at all. For instance, Michael Withiam, formerly the director of sports information, has taken over the job of Rick Vogel as director of alumni relations. Vogel has accepted a position with Shearson/American Express Inc. in Ithaca. Withiam, a 1979 Ithaca College graduate, will be responsible for coordinating programs for 24,000 Ithaca College graduates.

In the Residential Life Office, Brian McAree replaces Chris Horn as director of residential life. McAree brings with him experience from Rider College in N.J. as assistant director of residential life for staffing. He has also served with the University of Delaware, West Liberty State College, Bowling Green, and Ohio State University, where he received his Master of Arts Degree in College Student Personnel. In each university, McAree was involved in some aspect of residential life. Finally, the Career Planning Office has also made some changes. Nancy Dudak has assumed the duties as director of career planning and placement. The position was held by Linda Glasser who has left to pursue a Ph. D. in industrial labor relations at Cornell University. Career Planning is not new to Dudak who was a career counselor at State University of New York at Buffalo prior to taking over at Ithaca College. Career Planning is nothing new to Ned Waterburg either. Ned was the interim assistant director of career planning last year and has been officially assigned to that position for the coming year. All the new directors bring with them a good deal of knowledge and experience to their area of work.

BRIEFS/LETTERS

YARROW QUESTIONS BOMBER TRADITION

To the Editors:

In preparing for a course this fall on war and peace, I have read accounts of bombings that brought the tears to my eyes and the acid to my stomach- about firestorms in Hamburg and Dresden which sucked the air out of the bomb shelters and suffocated thousands, about Hiroshima residents whose eyes melted down their faces, about napalm burning children alive in Vietnam and about German missiles blowing off people's arms in Coventry. In the future bombing could mean your family being incinerated in New York or Rochester while you die a slow death of radiation poisoning in Ithaca. When you think about it, bombs are the chief means armies use to make war on defenseless civilians.

The more I delved into this painful topic the more our college's mascot "The Bombers" became intolerable to me. According to John Harcourt's new history of the college a majority of the students selected the name "The Cayugans" in 1937 but a college publicity staff writer in 1940 subverted the will of the majority by simply using the name "The Bombers" in his press releases. What a twisted symbol he imposed! We might as well call ourselves the storm troopers, the genociders, the lynchers or the rapists. Bombing is burning, blasting and maiming our sisters and brothers. To take it lightly in this way is to numb ourselves to what it is really about. If we are to have a future, we cannot afford this delusion.

In my four years at Ithaca College I have had a lot of bright and sensitive athletes in my classes. It troubles me that their sacrifices and accomplishments are achieved under such a perverted symbol. I know it is hard to give up symbols with a lot of tradition but we need to discard harmful traditions. I appeal to students, athletes, faculty and the administration to come up with a more positive mascot. We deserve it.

The 1983-84 STUDENT HANDBOOK contains valuable information regarding student programs and services, on and off campus community life, academic resources, student government, clubs and organizations. Students living on campus will receive their copy of the HANDBOOK from residence hall staff. Off campus students can pick up their copy at the Information Desk in Egbert Union. Handbooks will also be distributed to faculty and administrators by the Student Affairs office.

Neeson Welcomes Seniors

Dear Seniors,

Welcome back and get psyched! One more year left doesn't just mean more finals, all-nighters, and term papers. It also means more picnics, dances, parties and just all around fun.

The other senior class officers and I hope to bring you some of this fun and excitement. We're going to start by having a beer and bagel tailgate party before the Albany vs. Ithaca football game, Saturday, September 10 at 11:00a.m. in the garden parking lot. After we win the Albany game we're planning on another tailgating party before the St. Lawrence game on September 17(same time and place) followed by a senior-parents tailgate before the Buffalo game on parent's weekend. Next we are going to have a 200 days party, a tentative Octoberfest, and a semi-formal.

It's easy to find out about these events. We'll be submitting articles to the Ithacan, sending out senior newsletters, and posting advertisements on the senior class bulletin board (located next to the campus activiteis office in the Union) and on the Student Government bulletin board.

As far as fund raising goes we will be selling painter's hats as early as next week and have mugs and senior stickers on the way. A senior sticker is purchased and placed on the back on your I.D.. This enables you to various discounts at local merchants in Ithaca.

At last, if not most important, I urge you all to get involved. Not only in participating in senior events and buying hats, but also in working on other organizations as well. It's our last year-Let's make it count!

Several Seniors have already volunteered their time but more is needed and welcome. If you want to make suggestions, help out, or have any questions about upcoming events just call or write:

If you would like to discuss how unfair triples are and how your parents are paying much too much money for you to have to share a desk and closet, I'll be more than willing to listen. If one of your roommate happen to be one of the world's most inconsiderate people you have ever had the displeasure of living with, and he or she is driving you crazy...my sympathy is with you. As one person who has lived in a triple to another, I know that it's not easy.

"Why me? Why did I have to get stuck in a triple?" The answer is easy but it's the solutions that are a bit more complex. This year Ithaca College enrolled more than 1,400 students, which was an increase in last year's record total of 1,353. The answer is very simple; there are just too many students and not enough facilities to accommodate them. By mid-October the new dormitory, housing 100 students, should be completed. As to what effect the completion of the new dorm will have on the de-tripling process I am not quite sure, but I warn you to keep the level of hope down to a minimum.

I've taken the opportunity to write this article so that I might possibly save some students a great deal of pain and anguish. Triples are killers! They can run you down and ingest every bit of self-confidence you've acquired in your lifetime. A room should serve as a sanctuary. Your room should be a place where you can relax and unwind, not a place where frustrations can accrue to a raging anger. A room can be a message that can tell you that you really don't know who your friends are. But a triple in general is harder because there's always one person who is going to feel alienated and left out.

So you want to get out of your triple? You'll have your parents call and give hell, or maybe you'll go right to the head of Residential Life? Maybe you're just going to have to kill one of your roommates. No, don't kill- it's not worth it. Here's what you do and here's the gist of my article...

It doesn't matter how hard you try to get out of your triple because you will not be detripled until your time comes. It's so unfair that you almost want to cry but although a little tears never hurt, they're not going to improve your situation. Keep this in mind- you're not the only one and soon you will look back, search into your memory, and laugh at the crazy things you did to get out of the triple.

Bear with it! Talk to your roommates and tell them the things you dislike. Get everything out in the open and take care of yourself the best way possible. Believe me, you'll get out. I did and I was almost last on the de-tripling list.

Relieve the frustration by getting right to the heart of the problems. Hey, don't let another person (roommate) ruin your first year of college. It's not worth it! Just hang on and remember: You're not the only one.

DR. KING'S DREAM: TWENTY YEARS LATER

by Jay Schneiderman

On August 27 one quarter of a million people gathered together in Washington, D.C. to send to the White House and to all Americans a call for "Jobs, Peace, and Freedom."

The day marked the twentieth anniversary of the famous Civil Rights rally in 1963 when Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. said to a crowd of the same magnitude, "I have a dream."

Twenty years later we still have a dream. A dream that the double digit unemployment affecting Blacks, Hispanics, Native Americans, the disabled, women, and youth could be reversed to full employment for those who want to work.

We have a dream that a true peace can be created around the globe, not one dependent on scare tactics and deterrence which has created the constant risk of nuclear annihilation, and not a peace that requires a billion dollars per day for military expenses. A true peace requires an understanding of the problems that face our brother and sister citizens.

We have a dream that in the midst of continued racial, sexual, class, age, and religious prejudices a new coalition of consciousness could be formed to protect the civil rights of every individual at home and abroad.

The lawn in front of the Lincoln Memorial was filled with young and old, black and white, and people from various backgrounds and political views. There were representatives from many labor unions, environmental groups, religious groups, anti-nuclear groups, etc. all protesting together in the spirit of non-violent social change.

Among the performers were Corleta Scott King, Rev. Jesse Jackson, Bill Cosby, Graham Nash, Pete Seeger, Stevie

Wonder, Andrew Young and Gloria Steinem.

There was a strong air of anti-Reagan sentiment among the protestors which was echoed by many of the speakers including Bishop John Hurst Adams of the African Methodist Episcopal Church who said, "The key to jobs in this country is to remove Ronald Reagan from his job. We have the votes to turn the nation around."

There are several groups on campus which had representatives at the rally in Washington, including ICFAA, STAND, Greenpeace, COSA, ALS, and IC Hillel. I'm sure those groups and others concerned groups will be holding meetings in the near future. If you are interested in becoming involved, see the Student Government office upstairs in the Union for more information on these and other campus groups.

Catholic mass begins August 27 in Muller Chapel, and includes three liturgies every weekend: 6:30 pm Saturday, and 10:15am and 1:00pm Sunday. The Catholic Community of Ithaca College also sponsors weekday and special liturgies, social service projects, retreats, counseling, social events and much more. The office is located at the "pond level" of Muller Chapel, 274-3184, open 10-5 weekdays and before liturgies.

The summer of 1983 was marked with the tragic loss of a good student and most importantly, a good friend. His name was Jed Haubenstock.

As a student he will be remembered as an integral part of the Ithaca College community. Jed was on the President's Host Committee and a member of the Student Justices.

Jed was a student who was admired by both his peers and his professors for his driving initiative.

For those of us who were fortunate enough to know Jed we will always remember a kind and loving individual. He will also be remembered for his ability to be there for others when needed. For all of the people who knew him and loved him, he will be greatly missed and always remembered.

Friends.

INNOCENT BYSTANDER

Dave Fischer

Thomas Wolfe said you can never go home again. Those words reverberated through my mind as I stood, suitcase in hand, outside the front door. I took a deep breath, shut my eyes, and counted to ten before ringing the bell. (I had surrendered the housekey before the semester began as a self-assured sign of independence. The fact that I still carried a duplicate set of keys to the car was my reparation from the imperialist family.)

The door swung open and suddenly; like the realization one makes before death, I understood that Wolfe was right. I should not have come home again. The initial greeting was absent-minded, as if we had gone through this before; and indeed we had. Just as an instant replay is analyzed in slow motion, so is the entrance upon arriving home for the summer. I had the chance to be anyone I chose depending on my wardrobe selection. By wearing a sports jersey I could have given an impression of school spirit. A polo shirt and I'm a potential corporate prospect. I began to second-guess that maybe a concert tee-shirt was not apropos, and I definitely should have shaved. As for the suitcase packed with dirty laundry- just playing the role of college student returning home.

Upon walking into the kitchen it was very clear that I was not wanted. A glorious dinette set, formica still shimmering, basked in its new home. I am usually one who admires change when it is for the better, but this dinette set had only four chairs spaceously placed around it. Being that we are a family of five, I became uneasy.

Then it was up to the old bedroom which I used to share with my younger brother. I immediately noticed that the Farrah Fawcett poster had mysteriously evolved into The Police. My little league baseball trophies were now replaced by an Atari 800 home computer. A stake was being driven threw my heart. This was not my room; that was not my kitchen. The t.v. didn't even look familiar anymore. It was a conspiratory, trecherous scheme, planned over months, now successfully being executed.

You should never let the enemy know when you're hurt because they will cease the moment and attack when your defenses are down. I managed to keep a stiff upper lip which undoubtedly fooled them, but inside I knew I had been defeated. Slowly and dejectedly I dressed for dinner, harshly throwing my discarded clothes to the floor. I sadly walked downstairs, ready to surrender, when mom's voice nagged from my room.

"David, you march right back up here and pick up these clothes."

I knew this was home.

Statewide Environment Conference Scheduled

The Environmental Planning Lobby has announced the dates of a major statewide environmental advocacy conference. The 1983 "Conference on the Environment" will take place Friday evening, September 30th and Saturday, October 1st at the Turf Inn, Albany.

"This conference promises to be an exciting opportunity for environmentalists from across the state to meet each other, share information and develop our priorities for the coming year," said Judith Enck, Executive Director of the EPL.

Many prominent environmental leaders will participate in the conference, including U.S. Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan, DEC Commissioner Henry Williams, and the Chairperson of the Assembly Environmental Conservation Committee, Assemblymember Maurice Hinchey, to name a few. Workshops will focus on acid rain, the state budget, hazardous waste, lobbying and using the media, Westway and other diverse topics.

Hugh Kaufman, a controversial Environmental Protection Agency official, who "blew the whistle" on the Reagan administration's handling of the EPA will be the guest speaker on Saturday and will speak on the topic of citizen involvement in toxics issues. Governor Mario Cuomo has been invited to deliver the keynote address on Friday evening.

The public is invited to attend the conference and can get registration information by contacting:

Get down to business faster. With the BA-35.

If there's one thing business students have always needed, this is it: an affordable, business-oriented calculator. The Texas Instruments BA-35, the Student Business Analyst.

Its built-in business formulas let you perform complicated finance, accounting and statistical functions - the ones that usually require a lot of time and a stack of reference books, like present and future value calculations, amortizations and balloon payments.

The BA-35 means you spend less time calculating, and more time learning. One keystroke takes the place of many.

The calculator is just part of the package. You also get a book that follows most business courses: the Business Analyst Guidebook. Business professors helped us write it, to help you get the most out of calculator and classroom.

SOUTH HILL

South Hill has been a rather unnoticed part of the Ithacan for years. As every other aspect of the paper dons a new dress, South Hill will follow suit. How many times have you and friends sat around a room and groped for new ways to spend spare hours during the week and precious weekends?

South Hill can be your guide to entertainment. We'll inform you of a host of activities ranging from the appearance of bands down town, and art exhibitions in the galleries, to concerts in the major arenas all over New York State. If choosing a new atmosphere is a problem, we'll give you accurate accounts of what the bars and restaurants feature. Finding movie listings will no longer be a major production. This will not be an occasional treat, but a weekly reference point. There are countless additives unmentioned in the latter, and we can assure you that'll whet your appetite for new and exciting experiences. Ithaca College and the City of Ithaca contain a wealth of cultural attractions which are a significant aspect of every student's education.

If you desire to expand yourself by attending an exhibition in one of the galleries, or if pure fun is what you have in mind, South Hill will be your guide to it all.

In order for the arts and entertainment section of the Ithacan to enjoy success, which is directly related to the Ithaca College Community, avid participation in its so called facilities is a key factor.

Anyone interested in writing about the arts and entertainment is encouraged to attend the open house on Thursday, September 1 in the Ithacan Office. WE would like students in the drama, music, art, and communications departments who enjoy writing, to contribute to South Hill. A constant input from these sections of Ithaca college is a must. People with photographic skills are welcome to submit work for weekly exhibitions. Creative writing pieces will be accepted with pleasure as well. All novel ideas are welcome and will seriously be considered.

South Hill can be a significant influence on your choice of recreation and cultural expansion. Your contributions and involvement can make it something worth your while!

The Entertainment Guide to Ithaca

S.A.B. FAIR

by Lorraine Fanton

Many of the wide variety of clubs and organizations on campus are making themselves known today through The Fifth Annual Activities Fair. The Fair, sponsored by the Student Activities Board, (S.A.B.) is being held in the large activities tent in front of the Egbert Union from 10a.m. to 4p.m. Thursday, September 1st. In the event of rain it will be moved to the Crossroads. At the Fair, clubs will have a chance to recruit new members and students can find an organization that interests them. Many new students are not aware of the diversity of clubs available to them and miss out on what may be a valuable learning experience. Furthermore, students have a chance to meet other students who share common interests. In addition to seeking new members and giving out information, clubs will be selling and giving away merchandise. Stop in between classes and find out what Ithaca College's many clubs have to offer you as well as what you can offer them.

An innovation of the College's School of Music, the college Concert Line will have a recital rundown, program information, ticket information, at least a week's notice of events and will operate 24 hours a day. "There are more than 300 opportunities each year to hear concerts and recitals at Ithaca College by faculty members, students, ensembles and guest artists," says Assistant Dean of the School of Music Alexander Sidorowicz. "We think the Concert Line is a good service both for the College and for the Ithaca community and will keep people informed about the many musical activities at the College."

Most music programs throughout the year are held in Walter Ford Hall on the College Campus and are free and open to the public. You can get information about all the musical activities at Ithaca College by calling 274-3356.

Last Friday's convocation ceremonies will be rebroadcast on WICB-TV, local cable channel 13, on Wednesday, August 31 at 8:00 pm and again on Sunday, September 11 at 6:00 pm. The 40 minute programs cover the entire ceremony including the academic processional, greeting by chairman of the Board of Trustees Roy H. Park, remarks by President Whalen, and performances by the Ithaca College Faculty Brass Quintet. Palmer Dyer, professor and chairperson of corporate/organizational media, narrates the program.

The UPSTAIRS GALLERY announces the following exhibits:

At the Gallery, 215 N. Cayuga Street, Ithaca, from September 14-October 7: ITHACA ARTISTS -- 1983: RECENT WORK. Gallery hours are Tuesday - Friday 11-3pm, Saturday 11-4pm.

At the First Bank, Cayuga Heights WILLIAM F. ALBERN: PHOTOGRAPHS, during banking hours: September 14-October 7.

As part of its Outreach Program THE UPSTAIRS GALLERY presents Retrospective Prints by SHERRY HATHAWAY at the SHERATON INN CONFERENCE CENTER ART GALLERY. The public is cordially invited to a wine and cheese reception on Sunday, September 25, from 5:30 to 7 PM. The artist will be present. The Sherry Hathaway prints will be on view and for sale from September 14 through November 11.

FREE-FORM JORMA

Jorma Kaukonen sat down with the Ithacan's Dave Fischer between shows on Tuesday night and talked about music, the '60s, and philosophies in general. What follows is a compilation of their meeting: free-form Jorma.

On His Start

My neighbor had a guitar and showed me some things...I saw Pete Seeger finger-picking and it really wowed me. I went backstage with my father. I wanted to learn to finger-pick but nobody around me knew how to do it so I picked it up myself. The Joan Baez record came out and I learned "Silverdagger". Then I wound up in Ohio living in a house with Ian Buchanan, who studied with Gary Davis, and for some reason he liked me... I'm from Washington, D.C. so you had a choice of playing rockabilly, hillbilly or blues and we tried everything. Consequently when Jack and I had our first band together we got a chance to work in some really odd places.

On Clubs

I like to play at all different kinds of places. It depends on the audience. I like working clubs and the whole business. For what I'm doing now I prefer working smaller venues. It's better than a hot stage. I had to play My Father's Place Saturday night and it was real hot. It was about 110 degrees but it was still great. Sometimes I get to do the Capital or the Palladium. I did that Millertime Pier thing and it really worked out great. They had a brand new p.a. It was my first gig on the east coast and it spoiled me for the rest of the tour because it was incredible.

On Music

The blues is an accessible way to work. It's fun to do. Sometimes I get together with my friends and we do straight blues. I do a lot of blues by myself but it's mutated a lot over the years but I'm still close to blues...I used to really down on mainstream/pop music. Before I got in the "Airplane" I went through a period of time where I didn't want to hear about rock 'n roll and electric music. I was heavily into being as black as possible for that period of time. Then I wound up playing in a rock 'n roll band and then I realized that it really is amateur of taste. You either like it or you don't. I have a lot of stuff I really don't like. Actually in the mainstream and popular music lately, I like stuff on the country charts that really turns me on. But times keep on changing. The early '60s were pretty bleak in the music outpouring world.

On Current Projects

I'm doing this band thing with Jack [Cassidy]. It's rock 'n roll but it's really peculiar sounding stuff. Jack just dropped over one day and we started talking and then we started thinking about it and said we might as well go out and have some fun... You get bored doing what you've been doing for a long time. Jack and I are gonna review our whole collection of songs and pick out what we think we can do good. It'll sound like us because we're still playing, you can't get away from that, but it'll sound different.

On Musicians

Some people think musicians aren't artists but entertainers. I happen to think they're both. When you come out and play music you should be able to entertain them, in a more transcendental sense than just twitching in time to the music, but pick their psyche in some way...In writing, honesty is the most important thing and fortunately there's a large enough audience out there that somebody's gonna dig it...One of the problems with the music business today is that a lot of musicians have forgotten what their primary purpose is- which in my mind is to entertain. It's totally wrong for an audience to pay $20 and be treated like a criminal by the cops with body searches and getting tghair ass kicked.

On Change

I change because I'm easily influenced by stuff that I hear. I have a definite taste but I pick up shit real easy. I have to try to discipline myself and not pick up what I don't want to. I love the new gadgets, the electronics, programmable and what not, but still, you got to be able to play. Programming cymbals might not be good for a drummer, but as a guitar player working in the studio or writing parts it's fantastic...I've been playing "Hesitation Blues" since I learned how to play the guitar and I keep some songs I've played for a long time because I really like to do them. The ones I don't play that I still know, I rarely ever do. I don't like to do "Candyman" anymore. Sometimes I do it if I get drunk but usually I'll teach it to somebody because it's got a lot of funny tricks in it. But I've weeded out things I like and don't like...The things that prompt my changes are boredom and the status quo. It doesn't go any deeper than that.

On The '60s

Maybe I guess the '60s didn't last as long as we wanted it to. Guys and gals that are my age [42], a lot of us kind of blew it along the way. I'll probably have to include myself in there somewhere. Everybody forgot what it was all about. It's unavoidable, there are people out there who still believe in what little magic there was in the '60s, but it didn't last as long as we'd like to think it did...The nature of almost everybody's mentality these days with the nuclear shit, economics, that idiot in the White House and all the idiots that aren't in the White House, it's not real conducive for people going out and getting loose in that free kind of way...I don't think people change too much. Like you're an articulate guy. Sometimes you meet crazy people. I'm really not into crazies, they make me nervous and wanna go away.

On Some Philosophies

Did you know that more people were born in the world last year than ever before? Everything is getting bigger and bigger and the world is getting smaller and smaller...I don't like to fly anymore, the odds are stacking against us. They can't even fix a watermain in New York so what are they gonna do about the big stuff?...I don't think the system works but I don't have any better suggestion. Communism doesn't work, our system doesn't work. I just think we need a genius to do something...I don't talk much on stage because that's not what I'm good at... Has it been three decades already?...First of all nobody has a permanent niche and I guess it is and it isn't pressure. I just enjoy doing it, it's what I like to do. You know I'm too old to get a straight job. I just enjoy playing the guitar after all these years.

Atlas Linen Company is an exciting, powerful newcomer on the music horizon. The Central New York based band combines various styles of music to produce an unmistakable musical identity. This nine-piece group covers a wide spectrum of music demonstrating the flexibility and prowess of its members. From colleges and night clubs to headlining music festivals, Atlas Linen Company has been pleasing audiences with it's high-energy format. Atlas Linen Companies instrumentation includes a versatile rhythm section; guitar, bass, drums, and multi-keyboards; combined with a high-steppin' horn section and dynamic vocals.

Every performance is an explosive experience for the audience, but that is not enough for ALC. Much of the groups time is spent working on future goals. With many exciting original songs and more to come, Atlas Linen Company is on the right track for success. Years of individual experience, talent, and unlimited enthusiasm make the Atlas Linen Company the most exciting musical act of the eighties.

Don't miss them.

Quality, variety and achievement.

Three words which accurately describe the image of Ithaca College, and three words which describe the image of the athletic program at Ithaca College.

Providing each athlete in a variety of sports with an opportunity for achievement is the underlying philosophy of the athletic program at Ithaca. The College's success in meeting that goal is the most important reason that the word quality is associated with athletics at Ithaca.

The College athletic program has been successful at every level of competition: national, regional and state- and has brought to the College a reputation for quality that few colleges or universities can match. Twelve men's and 12 women's teams make the Ithaca program one of the most extensive small college athletic programs in the country.

Last year alone, 14 of Ithaca's 24 varsity teams were represented in post-season competition at the national level, with the women's field hockey team winning the NCAA Division III national championship. Thirteen Ithaca teams placed or were ranked among the nation's Top 20 Division III teams at the end of their respective seasons, with nine teams placing or ranking among the nation's Top 10.

Individual achievements were equally impressive. Sophomore swimmer Catherine Lyons tied for the Division III national championship in the 50-yard freestyle, setting a national record, as she became the first Ithaca athlete to win an individual national title. Lyons led a group of 30 Ithaca athletes in 10 different sports who were recognized as All-America.

Ithaca's 24 varsity teams combined to post a 249-123-2 record during 1982-1983, a winning percentage of .668, the third consecutive year that the overall winning percentage has increased.

Clearly, success at all levels of competition is a part of the Ithaca College athletic tradition. Success in athletics benefits the entire Ithaca community, providing entertainment, recreation, and a source of pride for students, parents, alumni and local residents. The athletic program is one of the most visible areas of the College, and its image parallels that of the College as a whole, a picture of quality, variety and achievement.

Follow all of Ithaca's fall sports this season in "The Ithacan". It should be another exciting season for all the Bombers and the sports writing team of Doug Clauson and Ivan Gottesfeld will be there to bring you each touchdown, goal, base hit and backhand. Sports Editor Doug Clauson will cover the Bombers on the football field as they attempt to complete another outstanding season. Assistant Editor Gottesfeld will cover the Men's Soccer team as they go for the ICAC title under Coach Ray Rostan. "The Ithacan" will also provide exclusive coverage of the defending national champion Women's Field Hockey squad, the defending ICAC champion Men's Cross Country team as well as the rest of the Fall sports lineup. In "Sports Focus", Doug Clauson will examine a national sports issue of current interest. Other special features of "The Ithacan" sports section include; the "College Pick-off," which features campus sports media experts testing their skills against one another in predicting each week's top college football games, the "Ithaca Sports Spotlight," which features an Ithaca athlete or coach in-depth, and the "Athlete of the Week". For total sports coverage this fall, turn to "The Ithacan" sports section.

BOMBERS FACE HUDSON VALLEY

Courtesy of Sports Info

After one of the hottest pre-season practice periods in coach Jim Butterfield's memory, the Ithaca College football team ended its double-session work outs on August 27, with the annual Blue-White scrimmage. The Bombers will face outside competition for the first time at 1 p.m., Sept. 3 when they scrimmage Hudson Valley C.C. at South Hill Field. Despite what he described as the second hottest summer practice in 30 years, Coach Butterfield was happy with the squad's performance during the Blue-White scrimmage. "The boys did a good job for a first scrimmage," says Butterfield. "We weren't awfully crisp, but we had a minimum number of mistakes. We're in pretty good shape."

The 1983 team is a veteran squad, with 20 seniors and 34 letterwinners returning.

The scrimmage with Hudson Valley C.C. will give Butterfield a chance to see what his players can do against outside competition as the coaching staff begins to decide who will receive starting positions for the season opener with Albany

State on Saturday, September 10. It will also give the players one last chance to work things out in a game situation.

"Elimination of errors will be the goal of the scrimmage," says Butterfield. "We need to dress ourselves up and eliminate the assignment mistakes, the penalty mistakes and the little technical mistakes which can hurt a ball club."
